

NICK ROTH (b. 1982)

www.nickrothmusic.com

Nick Roth is a saxophonist, composer, producer and educator.

His work seeks the liberation of improvisation from composition, the poetic syntax of philosophical enquiry, and the function of music as translative epistemology.

A curious predisposition and a steadfast refusal to accept the existence of boundaries between the real and the imaginary has led to collaborations with an array of international performers, composers, choreographers, visual artists, poets, sculptors, directors, festivals and ensembles.

Often engaging in conversation with scientists from such diverse fields as mathematical biology, astrophysics, forest canopy ecology, orchidology, quantum loop gravity or hydrology, his work is an investigation into how we can come to know through the art of music. Simultaneously subsumed by an insatiable appetite for literature, many of his compositions explore the symbiotic resonance of language as sound and symbol.

He is artistic director of the Yurodny Ensemble, a founding member of the Water Project, and a partner at Diatribe Records, Ireland's leading independent record label for new music.

He has served as artist-in-residence at institutions including the European Space Agency (ESTEC), California Academy of Sciences (CalAcademy), dlr LexIcon, Centre Culturel Irlandais, Paris (CCI), and the Irish Museum of Modern Art (IMMA).

His work is represented by the Contemporary Music Centre and the Association of Irish Composers, and supported by Music Network's Music Capital Scheme, funded by the Department of Tourism, Culture, Arts, Gaeltacht, Sport and Media. Music Network is funded by the Arts Council.

As a composer, his work has been commissioned and performed by the European Saxophone Ensemble, T.S. Eliot Foundation, Hong Kong New Music Ensemble, RTÉ Contempo Quartet, International Beckett Festival, Vogler Quartett, Trio InVento, Kirkos Ensemble, dlr LexIcon, Lina Andonovska, Paul Roe, Sligo International Chamber Music Festival, The Ark Cultural Centre for Children, Dublin Dance Festival, Kate Ellis, Caimin Gilmore, Emma Martin Dance, the National Concert Hall and Rough Magic Theatre Company, with performances at the Ankara International Festival, Jazz d'Or, Kings Place Encounters and representing Ireland at the ISCM World Music Days 2016 in South Korea.

As a performer, he has worked in three continents with many of the world's leading musicians including John Taylor, Savina Yannatou, Jennifer Walshe, Bobby McFerrin, Iarla Ó Lionáird, Nathalie Forget, Guillaume Orti, M.C. Schmidt, Diamanda La Berge Dramm, Gavin Bryars, Tom Arthurs, Julian Arguelles, Ben Davis, Ernie Watts, Alexander Hawkins, Ronan Guilfoyle, Oren Marshall, Alex Bonney, Olesya Zdorovetska, Merlin Shepherd, Mihály Borbély, Miklós Lukács, Matthew Jacobson, Benjamin Dwyer, Lucas Niggli, Sean Carpio, Kate Ellis, Cora Venus Lunny, Crash Ensemble, Oleg Ponomarev, Francesco Turrisi, Furio di Castri, Petar Ralchev, Zohar Fresco, Alkinoos Ioannidis, Theodosii Spassov and Pedram Zavir Kamini.

He has collaborated in major works, often commissions and world premières, by composers Mamoru Fujieda, Alla Zagaykevych, Jennifer Walshe, Ian Wilson, Panos Ghikas, Kamran Ince, Roger Doyle, Dan Trueman, Judith Ring, Mel Mercier, Adrian Hart, Elena Leonova, Linda Buckley, Ed Bennett, Henk van der Meulen, Onur Türkmen, Christian Mason, Francis Heery, Matthew Whiteside, Amanda Feery, Piaras Hoban and Elaine Agnew.

In the fields of arts-science collaboration he has developed projects with scientists Thomas E. Lovejoy, Margaret D. Lowman, Enrico Coen, Mark McCaughrean, Barbara Gravendeel, Iain Couzin, Francesca Vidotto and Henry S. Horn.

As an educator, he is currently a lecturer at University of Limerick (UL) and Trinity College Dublin (TCD). He has also been invited to teach, talk and give workshops at the California Academy of Sciences, European Space Research and Technology Centre (ESTEC), l'École Nationale Supérieure Louis-Lumière Paris, TEDxStormont, University College Cork (UCC), Sonic Arts Research Centre (SARC), University College Dublin (UCD), Institute for Biodiversity, Science and Sustainability, San Francisco (IBSS), Cork School of Music (CSM), Middlesex University London (MDX), University of Aalborg, Copenhagen, the National University of Ireland (NUI), Royal Irish Academy of Music (RIAM), Dublin Institute of Technology Conservatory of Music and Drama (DIT) and the Norwegian Center for Technology in Music and the Arts (NOTAM). Focusing on the creative process in early years development, he has worked as a facilitator for several educational organisations including the National Concert Hall, YouthReach, Common Ground, The Ark and Dublin City Council Arts Office.

He holds a Diploma in saxophone from the London Guildhall School of Music (Distinction) and a Bachelor Degree (1st Class Honours) in jazz and composition from Newpark College of Music (now DCU), studying saxophone with Kenneth Edge and Gilad Atzmon and composition under Ronan Guilfoyle and Elaine Agnew. He undertook further studies at the School of Improvised Music, New York under Steve Coleman, Ravi Coltrane, Vijay Iyer and Peter Epstein, of pedagogy in Hungary at the Kodály Institute under Katalin Kiss, and of Maqam and Composition in Houdetsi, Crete under Sokratis Sinopoulos and Ross Daly.
